

Task 6 — Professional Email Writing

Scenario 1 — CONTEXT

QA found critical problems before product launch.

ROLE

Act as a product manager.

TASK

Ask senior management to approve a 2-week delay.

FORMAT

Professional email under 200 words.

CONSTRAINTS

Include the reason and revised timeline.

Full Prompt

Act as a product manager. Write a professional email to senior management asking for approval to delay the product launch by two weeks because QA found critical issues. Include a revised timeline and keep it under 200 words.

Email Result

Subject: Request to Delay Product Launch

Dear Management Team,
During our final QA testing, we found critical issues that need to be fixed before launch. I would like to request approval to delay the product launch by two weeks. The extra time will allow the team to fix the issues and complete testing. The revised launch date will be two weeks after the original date.

Thank you for your understanding.
Best regards,
Product Manager

Scenario 1 Rating

Scenario 2 — CONTEXT

A P1 incident affects around 15% of users.

ROLE

Act as a backend developer.

TASK

Request emergency access to production logs.

FORMAT

Short urgent professional email.

CONSTRAINTS

Mention service, symptoms and access needed.

Full Prompt

Act as a backend developer. Write a short professional email to DevOps asking for emergency access to production logs because a P1 incident is affecting 15% of users.

Email Result

Subject: Urgent Production Log Access

Hi DevOps Team,

We have a P1 issue affecting around 15% of users in the authentication service. Some users cannot complete login. I need temporary access to the production application and error logs to investigate the issue. Please provide access as soon as possible.

Thanks.

Scenario 2 Rating

Professional & ready to send

BONUS — Tone Variation

Please treat this request as urgent because the incident is currently affecting users. Temporary production log access will help us identify the cause and restore normal service faster.
